Dear :

It has come to my attention that your membership in the Society of Plastics Engineers, as well as the _____ Section/Division is in danger of expiring. We would hate to see that happen, because you've been a valued member of our Section/Division.

If you allow your SPE membership to expire, you'll lose not only all the benefits of your membership in the _____ Section/Division, but so much more:

- ✓ Your subscription to Plastics Engineering, the leading magazine of the plastics industry;
- ✓ Your free access to the expert advice on our online technical message boards and forums;
- ✓ Your free access to focused research through our online technical database;
- ✓ Your free access to SPE's extensive plastics industry career resources, including job-search capabilities and career development advice;
- ✓ Your member-only discounts on state-of-the-art plastics training and education;
- ✓ Your free, member-only, online access to ANTEC and other industry conference proceedings;
- ✓ Your members-only discounts on authoritative technical publications
- ✓ Your members-only access to peer-to-peer assistance through the SPE membership directory;
- ✓ Your opportunity to save on low-cost health insurance, credit cards; and more.

That's a lot to give up! But, perhaps most important of all, you will remove your voice and contributions from your professional society at a critical time. Membership in SPE has never been more important than now, in today's volatile plastics industry. Don't miss out on SPE benefits and resources—and the contributions you can make to your industry! Renew your membership today.

Sincerely,
